Child-Friendly Backyard CONTEST

Sponsored by Leave No Child Inside – Greater Cincinnati

The Contest:

We know that unstructured outdoor play leads to happier, healthier and smarter children! Leave No Child Inside wants to encourage a return to the joyful, creative outdoor play activities that should be the birthright of all children. Our Grow Outside Guide to Outdoor Play (available at www.LNClgc.org) includes ideas for creating a Child-Friendly Backyard. The contest is a fun way to encourage parents to allocate space for these safe, unstructured play areas. To be eligible for awards, yards must be within a thirty mile radius of Downtown Cincinnati.

Guidelines:

Since the key words for a Child-Friendly Backyard are “creative” and “unstructured”, our guidelines are minimal! The measure of success for a Child-Friendly Backyard is that it will be a place your children and their friends will want to spend time playing, imagining and learning for many years to come! We will be judging you on your use of space, not the size of your yard. Here are some things to consider:

Safety

Free of lawn and garden chemicals, no poisonous plants, clear boundaries, child in view of parents.

Encourages Unstructured, Creative Play

Includes elements which offer opportunities for children to have “ownership” of the space; natural materials present for children to discover, learn from and use.

Invites Other Creatures

Includes elements which attract wildlife. Examples include plants which attract birds or butterflies or a compost area.
